To whom it may concern,

I object to the proposed settlement in Lee v. Enterprise Leasing Company West LLC,
Case No. 3:10-cv-00326-LRH, U.S. District Court, Reno, Nevada.

Apparently, I rented a car from the defendant between 2007 and 2009 but I don't ever recall being overcharged. I likely rented from this company because it had the lowest cost. These kind of cases are legal robbery. A law firm obtains a couple of individuals as a front and files a class action lawsuit. They record some large legal bills at exorbitant hourly fees with the expectation of being reimbursed handsomely for their effort.

In this case, the two named plaintiffs will apparently receive $10,000 each and the remaining individuals, like myself, will receive a day's car rental or $5. I would doubt if 10% of the day car rentals would ever be used. According to the proposed settlement, the attorneys can receive up to $2,625,000.

If this proposed settlement is accepted, you can be assured that next time you and I rent a car both the defendant's and plaintiff's attorney fees will be included in the charge.

I urge you to throw this case out of court. To discourage future attempts to take advantage of the legal system and the public, I would like to see the plaintiff's attorney pay the defendant's legal costs but I realize that is asking to much.

Only judges that recognize the folly in these cases can put a stop to this type litigations.

Yours truly,

George Markich
